BUILDING THE FAIR.

Busy Scenes at Jackson Park, the Site of the Columbian Exposition. From a Chicago Dispaich.

It takes a fence six miles long to en close the World's Fair buildings. All these structures are to be of extraordinary dimensions, but the largest of them, on which the foundation work has just been commenced, will be some thing stupendous. It is the Hall of Manufactures and Liberal Arts. The site of this vast building is a broad, highly situated plateau overlooking the lake. A railroad track runs through its center, and on each side rise tremendous piles of lumber, iron and all sorts of con-A similar scene is witnessed at the other great buildings, on which further progress has been made. Within the enclosure the exposition site resembles one vast workground, surreunded by freight cars and lumber yards. Looking out towards the lake, the breakwater. the long pier and foundation for naval exhibit present the appearance of a mammoth dockyard.

Changed, indeed, is Jackson Park, and those who visited it three months ago would not know it now. A world's workshop, employing an army of builders, environed on three sides by the foliage and flowers of the south parks, and on the fourth by the infinite expanse of the lake.

The exposition site has undergone a wonderful change since last spring. A similar scene is witnessed at the

The exposition site has undergone a wonderful change since last spring. Then it was a soft, marshy ground shelving in irregular stretches to the water line. Now it is a firm level, a smooth sandy surface upon a clay subsoil. A perfect and admirably improved building site. The hundreds of visitors who view the grounds cannot immediately appreciate the immense difficulties that have been overcome and the great labor involved in the earthwork accomplished on this lake shore site. It is now a level surface to the line of the lake, a surface to a mile and work accomplished on this lake shore site. It is now a level surface to the line of the lake, a surface of a mile and a half in length and, at its southern extremity, nearly a mile in width. This has been created, graded and leveled by constantly employing a small army of men and now, within the six miles of fence that surrounds it, the work of constructing the great buildings is being pushed with ceaseless activity.

From the slight ominence already known as "administration building is destined to effectively crown, the observer can even thus early gain a realistic sense of the distinctive features and general magnitude of this stupendous destined to effectively crown, the observer can even thus early gain a realistic sense of the distinctive features and general magnitude of this stupendous undertaking. At this point he is practically in the center of the sites allotted to the principal buildings and the aystem of terrace work which will surround them. He is also in the center of a complex network of railway track, 50,000 feet of it extending in every direction and connected with the trunk lines by fifty switches, all of them in constant use. This system of railway is laid upon what, four months ago, was wild park land untouched by the first improvement. The tracks are covered with cars, loaded with lumber, iron and every description of building materials. These roll into the grounds unceasingly and are switched up to the buildings to which the materials belong. Gangs of men take hold with a will and as if by magic towering piles of material rise in every section of the grounds. Mounted superintendents ride from point to point urging things forward. The word is "rush" in every department and branch of construction.

The big buildings are beginning to rise. Already some of the principal structure are not only in evidence, but progress is marked on them from day to day. Looking northwest from the administration building, already so far advanced that it looms up imposingly against its back ground of park trees.

Rising in the vista are the Electricity and Mines and Mining buildings, on which the foundations are already completed. Upon the sites of the Horticultural and Transportation buildings all preliminary work is completed, and hundreds of men are engaged on every possible sort of construction work. Laying water mains, electricing the plant, modeling for the exterior decorative work and developing landscape effects around the ornamental waters.

A basy place, indeed, is the exposition ground, and soon it will be as basy ing necessary for night construction has

st been arranged for.
From one end of the grounds to the From one end of the grounds to the other everything is pushed, and that, too, in all sections of the work. In the landscape system, which includes the lagoons, basins and ornamental waters, the breakwater and lakeshore terrace, the great pier and casino; in fact, all principal departments and even their minor divisions are being pressed forward with a business-like ambition thoroughly in accordance with the impelling spirit of this gigantic enterprise.

A Gallant West Virginian.

Washington Letter in Chicago Post.

It may not be uninteresting to the young ladies of Chicago to learn that James D. Butt, the talented young lawyer, of Harper's Ferry, who is due in Chicago to-day, is considered one of the notable gallants of West Vinginia. He is in Chicago as a World's Fair commissioner, and his fame is well known in Washington. His gallantry is best seen when he is piloting a beauty through the picturesque scenery of his native heath or when, with a jolly party, he is the leading spirit of a "straw" ride. He will be unable to display any picturesque scenery gallantry. "straw" ride. He will be unable to dis-play any picture-que scenery gallantry on the flats of Chicago perhaps, but if some of the pretty girls of Chicago will join him in a "straw" ride they will see more true southern gallantry to the square inch than has ever fallen to their lot.
